Continuing, he said that he would stake his life on the honor of the city of Richmond. It was no catch-penny business. They would make $100,000. He said that $3,000,000 was waiting in London to be spent here. Fifteen hundred dollars of his money had been spent here lately to prove what he thought of it. Mr. Carter said that his amendment had removed his objection to the tunnel. The company had agreed to put up a big forfeit, guard property-owners against loss, and as a business proposition he was in favor of granting an extension of time for doing the work. He said that every dollar that the railread company put in the tunnel in bricks and timber was saving a dollar that would be taken from the citizens of Richmond. He begged that the wheels of progress and improvement be not choked.

Mr. Courtney opposed the ordinance. He said that the company had not a cent, but they banked on a $4,500,000 franchise. Now, why not make the n pay for it? He cated the fact that Madison Ward was the largest tax-pacing ward in the city. He declared that it was an outrage to inflict such a bardship upon Madison Ward, and he wanted the people to know where the money came from.

Mr. Guigon said he was forcibly reminded of the old adage, "Save me from my friends and I will take care of my enemies." He disagreed with Mr. Courtney in saying that the favorers of the ordinance were governed by ward feelings. He was opposed to the ordinance apon broader grounds, and he gave all the same credit he assumed. He said that this company boasted of its wealth and yet could not raise $5,000 forfeit when called upon to do so. He said that the $100,000 deposited with the city was but poor remoneration when the walls of a citizen's house had tumbled down and he been deprived of his home. It would be necessary to drag the claim through the courts, and even then the bonds might have been sold by the city and there was no remaneration. The company was by its own confession, bankrupt, He declared he had a distinct interest in the advancement of the general interest of the city, and he had so informed his constituents. He knew that there was no chance of building the road and no need of it.

THE FEW MUST SUFFER. by His Mother on a Train.

A seven-year-old lad, who gives his name as John Summerfield Knox, and who claims to be from Atlanta, was picked up in the vicinity of the Second market late Monday, evening and taken to the station-house where he told a very pathetic story of how he became lost from his mother and little sister at the kichmond and Danville depot in this city on Sunday evening. The little fellow says his mother, his little five-year-old sister, and himself left Atlanta Saturday evening to visit his grandmother, a Mrs. Knox, who lives in this city. They reached Richmond about 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and as the passengers were getting off the train he lost sight of his mother and little sister. As the little fellow narrated his story large tears roiled down his white cheeks and even the hearts of the officers were deeply touched.

Johnnie said when he could not find his mother he went back into the car and remained there all night, but early esterday morning he was compelled to leave it, and he started out to find "mama and little sissy." He stated that he had spent the whole day in a fruitless search for his loved ones and had just given up in despair when the officer approached him and requested him to follow him to the station-house, where he would be cared for until his hama could be found.

He says his father's name is the same as his own and that his mother's name is Fannie Knox. He talked much about Atlanta, his home, saying his papa lived on Prior street, which is one of the most prominent residential thoroughfares in the Gate City.

Summer concerts are not always successful, but the Mozart musicale last night was an exception to the rule. It was a delightful affair—the programme was attractive and agreeably rendered, and the audience was large for a summer night.

The feature of the concert was the singing of Mr. W. H. Hamilton, the baritone of the Annaniale-Hamilton Opera Company, who sang in place of the gentleman who had been announced. Mr. Hamilton's superb voice completely charmed the audience, who demanded an excere after each of his numbers.

Mr. Mayland's flute solos were marked by an extreme delicacy of tone, and what he lacked in power was atoned for by tunefulness. WANTED A GOOD PORFEIT.

Gone After the Prisoners.

Captain Angle and Sergeant Brooks left the city Sunday evening for Philadelphia to bring to Virginia the two prisoners. Cusic and Tom Byrnes, who were arrested in that city on Saturday for complicity in the Farmville robbery. They are expected to return to Richmond with the prisoners this afternoon or to-morrow. No new developments in the affair at Farmville came to light yesterday, and it is now believed the principals in these robbery schemes have been caught, and that most of their work will be brought to light.

"We have this day forwarded to you our potice that we have discontinued lusiness."

"We have this day forwarded to you our notice that we have discontinued business within your Commonwealth and jurisdiction. This notice perhaps, ought to have been forwarded to you before, but we were inclined to believe that a formal withdrawal was unnecessary and that the reports you request related merely to such business as was done in the State. The fact is that we ceased to do business in your State about the latter end of March of this year and have made no effort and have not intended to continue since.

The conference approved of the plan of the Baron, siming at the co-operation of the Jews in Europe and America in the work of organizing the emigration of Jews from Russis. It was decided to again send delegates to Russis for the purpose of constituting a central committee in St. Petersburg and of establishing provincial com-
